Director General of the Islamic World Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (ISESCO), Salim bin Mohammed Al-Malik visited educational institutions in Shusha and Khankendi during his visit to Azerbaijan.

The Director General, together with the Minister of Science and Education, Emin Amrullayev, first examined the modern learning facilities at Shusha City Secondary School No. 1 and met with students to discuss the educational environment.

Following this, he visited Garabagh University, where he toured the newly constructed university buildings, inspected classrooms and laboratories, and visited the student dormitories. During a meeting with students, discussions were held on the conditions ensuring effective educational activities, and memorable photos were taken. The university rector, Shahin Bayramov, provided the guest with information about the university’s activities.

As part of the visit, the ISESCO director-general and members of the delegation he led also familiarized themselves with the Garabagh University clinic. Clinic director and Dean of the Faculty of Medical Sciences and Health, Samir Babayev, provided detailed information on the clinic’s operations, the conditions created and future plans.
