On May 18, as part of the World Education Forum, a bilateral meeting took place between the Minister of Science and Education Emin Amrullayev and “Microsoft” company's Director for Global Education Dina Gobashi.

During the meeting, opportunities for cooperation in the field of digital transformation of education were discussed, including the integration of artificial intelligence-based solutions into the learning process, the development of digital skills for teachers, and the application of innovative technologies.

The parties also touched upon initiatives implemented by “Microsoft” in Azerbaijan. The importance of expanding the opportunities provided by the company within the framework of the "Digital School" program was noted.
