Science and Education Minister of Azerbaijan Emin Amrullayev met with UNESCO's newly appointed assistant director-general for education, Quan Shen, on the sidelines of the World Education Forum held in London.

During the meeting, the parties exchanged views on expanding cooperation in education, joint participation in global initiatives and the application of innovative approaches.

The meeting highlighted the importance of joint activities in the area of innovative approaches in education and achieving of the Sustainable Development Goals. An agreement was reached on the implementation of joint projects in the future, the expansion of international experience exchange in the field of education, and the further deepening of cooperation.