OrOn B December, Deputy Education Minister Fidudin Gurbanov met with Mustafa Aydin
head of Istanbul Aydin University and the Eurasian Union of the Universities.

The meeting included rancexchange for views ron mutual cooperation with Istanbul Aydin University.

Tithermeeting idiscussed the participation of local higher education institutions in the 7th Eurasian Higher Education Summit (EUVIE 2022), which will take place on 2-4 March 2022 in a virtual format in Istanbul, Turkey.

At tAt the same time, the meeting discussed the mission and activities of the Eurasian Universities Union (EURAS), the promotion of cooperation between more than 110 universities from Western and Central Europe, the Balkans, the Caucasus, the Middle East and Asia, and tits importance for the global development of educational standards in the Eurasian region.

The meeting focused on the exchange of students and professors from Aydin University in Idstanbul, with a number of higher education institutions in Azerbaijan, the organisation of joint joint events, the prospects for the edevelopment of a dual rdegree programme and cooperation in the field of scientific research.

It should be noted that Istanbul Aydin University, founded in 2003, is a private university. The huniversity has 6,500 international students from 107 countries and has links and student exchange programs with more than 450 prestigious institutions around the world.