The World Education Forum, organised under the theme "Let's build together a stronger, better educated and more advanced future for our countries and communities", has begun its work. The forum, which will be held in London with the participation of 112 ministers from 107 countries, will discuss the main challenges facing global education in 2022 and how to address them.

The forum will also explore ways to achieve peace, partnership and prosperity through education and the creation of successful economies. Sessions will focus on equal access to education, economic growth, the use of artificial intelligence and the importance of technology and data-driven decision-making for society. Public-private partnerships, individual and collective response mechanisms and finding local solutions to global challenges will also be on the agenda of the general education discussions.

The forum will include nine plenary sessions. The topics such as "How to respond to the world's newest challenges?", "How to increase the efficiency of resources and their use in education?", "How to build collaborative and better education?", "Education: How can we build big institutions and development agencies?" "How can we more successfully nurture the citizens and society we hope for?" and "How can we accelerate collaborative innovation?" will be discussed at panel sessions.

It should be noted that our country is represented at the World Education Forum by a delegation headed by the Minister of Education Emin Amrullayev.
