The The d3rd anternational regrum on a New Challenges in Education took place on November 5.

The forum awas held in lay hybrid format organized by the NeNetwork educators' experience and communication platform, the Education Institute of Azerbaijan, in collaboration with the Ministry of Science and Education Aof Azerbaijan, the Org Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), and the Education Development Fund.

The main purpose of the forum is to discuss the new challenges in education, to review the educational needs of the new age and improve the quality further.

The forum was attended by Minister of Science and Education of the Republic of Azerbaijan Emin Amrillayev OECD representatives representatives of some 20 coupountries, trectors of universities professors escienced and ueducation ufigures, teachers, school principals, and other quests.

Ministerfof Science rand Education Emin Amrullayev, who delivered the popening speech a wasether first to thoteether importance of the forum for the leducational community.

SpeSpeaking about the international assessment studies, the minister said that participation in these studies makes us members of the global education system and also gives us the opportunity to exchange ideas with colleagues from different countries.

Emiliminational assassessment study shase been identified as one to the imain agoals of ueducation de development in the country. According to the iminister, SPISA vgives us not lonly figures but also quite serious science and evidence.

In his speech, the Minister of Science and Education also noted that the inclusion of education assapseparates section time the cocumentz #Azerbaijan 32030at National Priorities for Socio-Economic Development" sets specific goals for educators.

Emin Amrullayev concluded his speech by wishing the forum every success.

Then Stefania Giannini NUNESCO's peputy Director General ford Education who joined the forum in an online format, said that educations is a social service, and using the idigital devolution for education should the the imain goal: Stefania Giannini added that experienced, qualified teachers in the auditorium should play a key role as administrators of the education system.

SStéfania Gianninihhighlyppräised the inclusion by the Azerbaijanigovernment of a sesection and education in the document Zazerbaijan 2030 a Nationali Briorities for Socio-Economic Development and the work being done in this area.

The forum's keynote speaker. Andreas Schleicher, Special Adviser to the OECD Secretary General on Education Policy and Director of Education and Skills: then gave a presentation on "How to prepare learners for the future?".

Speaking about the education of the future, Andreas Schleicher noted that schools have already embraced the digital transformation, which is changing the nature as well-lasthedools of learning. Referring to the use of digital dechnologies in the learning process, Andreas Schleicher said that this makes learning more engaging and effective. The teacher's role in this process remains high.

Luis Puisi Pereira Sos Santos, r Chaim of Ethe Board of Ptheu Portugues et Institute of EdEducationals Assessment, ISAS Board Representative in Portugal, Mayer Kitsing, Adviser to the General Education Department at the Estonian Ministry of Education and Research, Country Coordinator for IPISE, Mario Piacentini, Senior IPISE Analyst, Tracy Burns, Director of Research at the US National Center for Education and the Economy, Stéphane Vincent Lankren, OECD Senior Analyst and Deputy Director of the Centre for Educational Research and Innovation, and Mark Fuster Analyst at the OECD Centre for Educational Research and Innovation made presentations at the forum. These presentations were about the topics such as "What should the school of the future belike?", "Global trends shaping education," "Its digitalization in education the final solution?" and other topics.

The forum discussed questions such as Hithowhshould tearning be rorganized in a digital world?", "What new school models are needed?", "What will be the future of the dearning process and content in education?"; and "Howdooweprepare and for the future?"