On 18 June, Emin Amrullayev, Azerbaijan's Minister of Science and Education, visited the national pavilion at the "Global Congress on Sustainable Development (GSDC 2025)", being held in Istanbul, Türkiye. Azerbaijan's leading higher education institutions were represented in the pavilion.

Azerbaijan was represented in the pavilion by a number of leading higher education institutions. In particular, Baku State University, Azerbaijan State University of Oil and Industry, Azerbaijan State Economic University, Azerbaijan Technical University, Azerbaijan University of Architecture and Construction, Baku Engineering University, Nakhchivan State University, Sumgait State University, Karabakh University, Khazar University, Baku Higher School of Oil and Azerbaijan Medical University were represented in the pavilion.

The universities presented their research and development projects focusing on environmental protection and sustainable development, as well as their achievements in applied and innovative technologies. Participants were provided with informative information about the projects and educational initiatives being implemented.

It should be noted that the congress is attended by more than 5000 delegates from over 100 countries.
