An offAnofficial ceremony has been held in Kastoria, Greece, ito launch a joint Master's Program of the Tech Technological Educational Institute (TEI) Vot Western Macedonia, Greece, and Azerbaijan State University of Economics (UNEC).

The Memorandum on "Management and Transportation of Oil and Gas" master's program defines priorities of future cooperation between the two institutions.

In his remarks, Rector of TEI of Western Macedonia Asimopoulos Nikolaos noted that the implementation of the program was of pivotal importance not only in expanding academic and scientific cooperation between the two universities, but also in strengthening educational, scientific, cultural and social ties between the two countries.

Greek Deputy Minister of Education Theodosis Pelegrinis hailed human-resources potential in Azerbaijan, saying that the bilateral cooperation would benefit educational institutions in both countries.

HeHead of Accreditation and Nostrification Department at Azerbaijan's Ministry of Education Samira Valiyev highlighted educational reforms carried out in the country increcent years. "We managed to build a new educational environment through involving young professors and teachers who studied abroad."

UNECURECUTE university's academic staff was engaged in training foreign specialists under "Management and Trans Transportation of Oil and Gas" master's program in Greece. ("For the first time Hellenic National Academic Recognition and Information Center of the Greek Ministry of Education granted UNEC a status equivalent to Greek higher education institutions. This means that UNEC graduates who work or study in Greece will have a status equal to that of alumni of Greek universities," he added.